UK Mosque provides Ambulance for Kashmiri refugees

Funded by a UK mosque, the ambulance is a life-line for refugees in Azad Kashmir. £6200 paid for the ambulance and 1 years running cost.

Water Supply Schemes

A donor from London has donated £1500 in the name of his mother, to provide safe drinking water and a community water tank in a dry, mountainous region of Kashmir. Prior to this the local villagers had to travel 2km with containers to bring back water for their daily use. He has since arranged the installation of two Wudhu areas in local mosques in the name of family members.

Ambulance for Afghanis in Chaman and Jalalabad

Another mosque in the North of England paid for an ambulance for use at our Chaman Medical camp for Afghani refugees. Small Kindness, a London based charity donated funds for the purchase of an ambulance which is now running inside Afghanistan in Jalalabad.

Education of Girls in Karachi

A Trust in London approached Muslim Hands to help them achieve the aim of sponsoring the education of girls in Karachi, Pakistan. Specific requirements were set and now we are sponsoring 9 girls for them. Two have already gone on to become teachers. At a mere £20 per month per girl this project has changed the future for these young ladies.
